PREFACE.

To fulfill its first purpose a work of the character here submitted to the public must be accurate in every possible particular. That it should be entirely so is not to be expected, but it may be free from any appreciable number of errors, and the precautions taken in the preparation of this particular work are such as to warrant the presumption that within reasonable limits this end has been attained.

The data used in compiling the work has been largely The Mahoning County Abstract Company's transcript of the County and Court records, but includes also every available survey map and record item, public and private, which affects Mahoning County lands and land boundaries; and further, many new measurements made for this purpose especially.

The location and shapes of the buildings have been obtained by actual field work covering the entire territory.

The index or reference to recorded plats, a new feature in atlas work, is designed particularly to serve the convenience of those who deal in real estate.

The absence for more than a generation of an up-to-date, reliable reference map of Mahoning County has been a hardship, not alone to conveyancers, but also to buyers, sellers and mortgagees, and a source of much needless confusion and expense.

If this work shall prove as accurate as it has been the effort of the compilers to make it, reference to it in the preparation of conveyances will render the labors of future abstractors and conveyancers lighter and provide against many possible boundary line disputes and many possible inconsistencies in the public records. The importance of so drawing instruments affecting realty that they may be entirely intelligible to future generations, grows with the age of titles and the increase in the volume of the public records, and no possible precaution against a lack of clearness should be neglected. Reference to a published map of accepted reliability is the next best thing to reference to a recorded plat, and either one adds much to the clearness of a description of lands.

In the compilation of this work all possible diligence has been exercised to the end that it might be entitled to rank as an authority in its field, but the amount of detail involved prohibits the possibility of perfection, and for those discrepancies which may have crept in the publishers respectfully beg the indulgence of the public.
